Survey Results Provide Opportunities for Improvement

The District surveyed students, staff members, and parents in April as part of its continuous improvement focus. Some 15,000 individuals responded, evaluating such areas as school atmosphere, facilities, teachers, coursework, technology, District leadership, and parent communications.

"The survey helped to identify symptoms of problem areas," explained Jay Marino, Associate Superintendent of Organizational Effectiveness and Accountability. "School and support service teams are now reviewing the survey data and creating action plans to address the concerns."

The District plans to conduct the surveys every other year.
